

If our changing democratic society is going to survive, we must provide citizens with the opportunity to reach their full potential, to become free and responsible, and to understand that life itself is an educational experience.

Galloway is committed to maximizing the unique potential of each individual child. through a program of continuous progress, evaluation, individual needs, interests, learning rates and learning styles are fully accommodated.

Freedom and responsibility develop as mutual expressions of an "educated" child. Our goal is to guide children in developing competence and mastery of skills which in turn allows them to express freedom with responsibility.

Life itself is an educational experience. Our goal is to impart information as meaningful units of integrated subjects that have personal relevance for the child. We hope to provide an education where academic knowledge is validated by meaningful experience and where experience is the primary source of knowledge. We at Galloway have tried to develop a community that is loving, confronting, accepting, encouraging, and challenging. Learning takes place through personal relationships. Through our staff and faculty, we provide models who encourage and nurture the unique potentials in every child. They are chosen because they demonstrate integrity, responsibility, understanding, courage, and scholarship, and are committed to the philosophy of individualized education.

Elliott Galloway
1980